

STANTON

Mrs. Clarence Atkinson and Miss Nancy Ewen left Tuesday for Winchester, where they will visit with their sister, Mrs. Margaret Oldham. They will also visit in Lexington before returning home.

Mr. Fred Ware moved into the house formerly occupied by Wm. Hardwick this week.

Any one finding a five dollar bill will receive a reward if they will return it to Miss Alice Creed. She lost it the day of Mrs. Press Ewen's funeral. Of course an honest person will return the money and the dishonest one will not.

Prof. Alter, who was a former teacher in Stanton College arrived Tuesday for a brief visit with his many friends in Stanton, before returning to his Seminary work in Pittsburg. He has been spending his vacation looking after some churches in Tennessee.

Miss Bernice Conless, of Mt. Sterling, was visiting her cousin, Miss Ethel Martin the past week.

Mr. Comorodi, of McRoberts, brought his boy here to attend our college. He recognizes a good school when he sees it.

George Derickson, who has been sick with typhoid fever for several weeks is able to sit up now.

Mrs. Grace Hart Ferguson, of East Liverpool, O., an old school mate and friend of Prof. and Mrs. J. C. Hanley, is visiting them this week.

The new teachers who have arrived to teach in our college are Miss Bertha Carver, of Tenn., Miss Irene Thompson, of Penn., Miss Ida Paisley, of Iowa, and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hanson, of Ohio, with their little son. We are glad to welcome them to our little town and we trust that everybody will give them the glad hand of welcome. You who have gone to a new place as a stranger know what it means and so let us hasten to show our friendship to these new strangers within our gates.

Several of the old students have returned to attend college this year. Among the many we notice the following: Misses Maxie and Daisy Johnson, of Tallage, and Miss Sara Hardwick and Richard, of Mt. Sterling, Victor Tipton, late of Ohio, and Miss Conlee, of Rosslyn.

The college opened up on Monday with an enrollment larger than ever before at this time of the year. We hope that it will grow and grow till we have an overflowing school. If everybody came that ought to come there would not be room to hold them all. The prospect for the coming year are very bright. We have a fine set of teachers and a splendid equipment and a fine town for the students to live in. No saloons, gambling dens or other evil places to go to. The prospects are that the town is going to grow some day and we hope that it will always be as clean as it is now.

There will have to be an election at a town council at this coming November election. The present members are all holding over with one exception and he was appointed to fill out the place of Mr. Ide Boone, who was elected Circuit Clerk and was also an holdover. So please come out and announce yourself as a candidate for this splendid office. There is no pay in it but you can render your town service that is worth far more than any pay. The present council are Messrs. I. W. Johnson, Jesse Crowe, Virgil Atkinson, J. R. Stone, Romulus Jackson and Paul Derthick. Any of these members are willing to step down and give way to you so you will not be apt to have any opposition. This is one office that you will not have to spend any money or whiskey for.

Miss Anna Clark assisted by Mrs. Martha Derthick entertained her Sunday School class last Thursday afternoon. There were twenty of the class present besides six visitors. Water-melon, ice cream and cookies were served.

Wm. Ecton, Jr., has been selected by the city council as tax collector, and he has been rounding up the delinquents in proper style the past few days.

GOOD NEWS.

The Paris Democrat announces that the turkey crop in Bourbon county is better than ever known before, and attributes it to the dry season, which illustrates that there is always something to be thankful for—Thanksgiving and Christmas are growing near.

CENSUS FIGURES ON POWELL COUNTY.

The latest bulletin issued by the State Board of Health shows that in Powell county the total number of deaths in 1913 was 82, as against 86 in 1912. Of these 33 were from preventable diseases, and with proper care could have been treated in the earlier stages and thus saved that many lives. Tuberculosis was responsible for only nine, as against fifteen for the previous year, a wonderful gain, if it is permanent. Measles claimed five, whooping cough three and typhoid fever two. There were five deaths by violence and three from cancer.

There were 220 births in the county as against 202 for the previous year, and the estimated population of the county is given at 6,212.

Of the 82 deaths occurring in the county, 23 were of infants under one year, 11 were children between the ages of one and four, and fifteen were over 65 years of age.

POULTRY FEEDING.

Owing to the fact that all feedstuff for the winter is advancing in price very rapidly, we would suggest that poultrymen buy feed, while it is low, early in the fall and make their own feed. Six bushels of wheat, two of corn, one of oats, one-half bushel of sunflower seed, one bushel of kafir corn, mixed thoroughly will make a fine feed for your chickens this winter. Of course, other expensive ingredients can be added, but this makes a good feed at the price.

The Richmond Climax, one of the oldest and most influential weekly papers in the state, changed hands last week, when Col. W. P. Walton, purchased the interest of his brother, Ed. C. Walton, and assumed the management of the paper.

Col. Walton is well-known in the newspaper world, having edited the Climax for some months last year, and he will make several changes in the paper, among them being to make it a semi-weekly, instead of a weekly, and install typesetting machinery and other modern improvements.

TOBACCO CUTTING ON IN EARNEST

Tobacco cutting will be on in good earnest this week and the crop is up to expectations, the early crop is above the average and the late crop will be as good if frost holds off long enough. All corn fields except the earliest ones look as if they would make good. Late corn will be above the average. Water melons and garden stuff are on the market in abundance and are selling at reasonable prices, the pastures are growing very fast and all kinds of stock will go into winter quarters in good shape. The farmers of this county will not have to spend very much money for feed this year which means many dollars will be added to their net earnings. Nearly every farmer's wife has a lot of nice frying size chickens and turkeys are growing very fast. Most of them will be ready for the Thanksgiving market.

WHY NOT MORE SHEEP?

One word will answer this question: Dogs. If it were not for the worthless curs, all the southern States would have at least a hundred sheep where one is now found. In a canvass of the South a year ago all the replies might be summed up in these few words, "No sheep, dogs." And what are the dogs worth?

The editor of this paper loves dogs. His sentiments are those of Senator Vest, but when you figure out the value of dogs in any State, compared to the sheep industry that would be developed if it were not for the curs, dogs would be nowhere—and sheep would be on every farm.

TO HANDLE TOBACCO IN THE BEST WAY

The following information on the handling of the tobacco crop, is of particular interest at this time of the year, and should be read carefully by every tobacco grower.

The sticks of tobacco should be hauled to the barn in a wagon fitted with a tobacco frame made so that each end of the stick will rest on a runner, and tobacco hang down between.

Stacking tobacco on a hay frame or slide bruises the leaves and prevents it curing properly.

Green tobacco should be hung in the barn with the sticks eight to ten inches apart, according to the size of the tobacco.

The center tier of the barn should be filled before the side tiers are begun. This gives the tobacco in the center of the barn a chance to get the air that would be cut off if the side tiers were filled first (and remember that Barley needs all the air you can give it.)

When the tobacco is curing the ventilating doors should be left open during all the warm dry weather and whenever a breeze is stirring.

In rainy weather, or foggy weather, the ventilators should be closed as tightly as possible.

ESTILL COUNTY MAN HELD UP

Jefferson Tipton, a young white man, living on Miller's Creek in Estill county, was assaulted by four negroes near the C. & O. depot in Winchester Monday night, and severely injured.

Tipton came to Winchester Monday afternoon with a party of friends and was going in the direction of the depot when he was accosted by the negro man who commanded him to stop and give up his money. He resisted the effort to rob him and the negro struck him on the head with a club, knocking him unconscious, and several other blows inflicted cuts and bruises on his face. The negro highwayman made off with his suit case and hat. The matter was reported to the police but no arrest has been made.

Road Surveyor Carter Reynolds has put his section of the road leading from this city to the Walter's Ferry bridge, a distance of two miles, in first-class condition. He used the county's road machine and succeeded in getting the road with splendid grade. If all roads in the county were put in as good condition as Mr. Reynolds there would be less complaint of bad roads in this county next winter that there has been for years. A road with good drainage and the proper grade and width rarely ever gives much trouble.

SELLING STRAW

POOR ECONOMY.

On a trip recently through this county we noticed on almost every farm that the straw stacks were baled, ready for shipping, and streams of farm wagons were hauling baled straw to the city. The wheat fields made a bountiful yield this year, but it hurts to see so much fertility in the shape of straw leaving the farms. These same fields are short in humus, nitrogen and phosphorus, and commercial fertilizers will be purchased to raise another crop on them. We wondered why the farmers did not feed cattle, using the straw for bedding, making manure for those lands, or even put the straw back and turn it under. The straw brings a good price in the city, because hay is scarce—about $6 per ton—but is not this straw worth that much as humus if put back in the land? We think it is, because no commercial fertilizer will add any humus to the hungry land.

Then next summer, when dry weather strikes us again, the soil will be parched and packed and not hold moisture. It is this way Kentucky lands are being impoverished each year instead of growing richer.—Kentucky Farming.

BLACK LEG.

The Experiment Station has issued a warning for farmers to guard against this dread disease, as it has made its appearance in a number of places. Where the die of the malady, if out in the pasture, they should be buried deep or burnt on the spot without moving the carcass, and the ground around thoroughly disinfected with chloride of lime and an abundance of unslaked lime. Care should be taken to keep all cattyl in healthy surroundings and if the disease should appear in a community, all cattle in the neighborhood should be vaccinated. Every farmer should write the Experiment Station for particulars.

HOGS PAY BEST.

There should be, and usually is, more money made in raising hogs on the farm than other animals. Aside from cholera, hogs are less subject to disease, reproduce faster and make better gains per pound of feed consumed. The annual increase of hogs, cattle and sheep ranges from 50 to 100 per cent. The increase of hogs should be from 500 to 1,500 per cent. The sow has the advantage in bringing forth two litters a year and farrows several at each litter.

Dr. Warrington in "Chemistry on the Farm," states that for each 100 pounds of feed consumed the different farm animals make gains as follows: Cattle, nine pounds; sheep, eleven pounds, and pigs, twenty-three pounds. Pigs then make nearly two and a half times the gain over cattle for the amount of feed consumed.

The man who hails hogs to the market instead of corn is the one who should make money. Because of the fact that hogs are less subject to disease when properly managed than other animals, the hog has been called the "mortgage lifter." The money to the business is hog raising. No doubt much can be done to prevent cholera by the farmer, operating in adopting measures which will prevent the dissemination of cholera. It is up to the farmers to take themselves, on last analysis, to the one farm where it starts, by strictly following the advice of sanitary authorities and all working together to this end. I know of a farmer who kept his hogs healthy for four years, while the neighbors all around him were losing their hogs from cholera. He did it by an eternal vigilance in keeping infection out, and this man made a regular chore of cleaning the hog pens every Saturday afternoon.

SIX CONVICTED IN LETCHER COURT

Whitesburg, Sept. 6.—The Letcher Circuit Court has closed just one of the busiest four week's term of court ever held in the county in which there were six penitentiary sentences. Judge J. M. Roberson has returned to his home in Pikeville.

Among the men receiving penitentiary sentences were Lance Hall, who received a life sentence for his part in the battle on school election day at head of Rockhouse Creek in which four men were killed—three of the Hall's and Dunk Quillen; James Turner, a life sentence, for the murder of Annie May Warner in Jenkins; Oly Almond from three to five years for stealing several pieces of jewelry from a store in Jenkins; Cleveland Morelock for robbing store at Crafts; and from two to five years; Johnie Candill for one to three years for horse stealing; Bud Alexander, 10 years for murder.

Before leaving Judge Roberson set down a special term for November when the greatly congested civil docket will be cleared. The other murder cases on the docket will be disposed of at the regular term in January.

A. J. Curtis ran into a nest of bumble bees Thursday while plowing two miles south of this city. The bees stung him so severely that he soon after turned blind and became deathly sick. Dr. Martin was summoned and succeeded in giving relief, but Mr. Curtis was very sick for several days following.

BRIDGES SHOULD HAVE A COAT OF PAINT

The following letter from the Department of Public Roads at Frankfort is very timely at this season of the year, particularly as nearly all the bridges in Powell county are in need of a coat of paint. There are seven bridges in the county, and none of these has received a coat of paint since being erected, with the exception of the one at Waltersville. The bridges more recently built are not in as urgent need of care as some of the others, and a little attention and a coat of paint at a later date. Following is a copy of the letter being sent out by the Department of Public Roads at Frankfort to the County Judges, Road Engineers, Magistrates and County Road Engineers:—

September 3, 1914.
To All County Judges, County Attorneys, Magistrates and County Road Engineers:—

Gentlemen: I wish to call your attention to the fact that the life of steel bridges depends on the care which they are given, and one of the things that you cannot afford to overlook is that of painting.

Your bridges should be painted this fall before the weather gets bad, and by doing so you will prevent them from rusting out during the winter months.

I would advise that the best results can be obtained by the county purchasing the paint and employing some reputable man to do the work. Good bridge paint can be bought for about $1.50 per gallon and a rough rule is to buy one gallon of paint for each foot for every ten feet of bridge. We also recommend the use of red lead ground in linseed oil for the painting of bridges. This will preserve the bridge for about five years, provided the bridge is thoroughly cleaned of all rust and dirt before painting and two coats are applied.

The steel can be cleaned of rust, grease, dirt etc., by the use of a wire brush or sharp edged tool.

In case two coats are applied they should be of different colors.

This Department will be glad to furnish estimates of cost of painting bridges, provided the length of span, width of roadway and the height of trusses are furnished us.

The Department of Public Roads maintains a corps of competent engineers to assist you in your road and bridge work and any service rendered is free of cost to your county.

Yours truly,
ROBERT C. TERRELL,
Commissioner of Public Roads.

GOOD PRICE FOR CATTLE.

The record price for export cattle was paid at Mt. Sterling this week when Tibbs & Company, of Indianapolis, purchased 70 head from Josh Owings at $9 per hundred. The cattle are in fine condition and weighed 1,500 pounds average. Mr. Tibbs also purchased a nice bunch of Dave Fox at $8.40 per hundred and a number of other nice cattle from various parties.

BLACKLEG BREAKS OUT IN CLARK COUNTY.

Blackleg, a deadly disease among cattle, has made its appearance in Clark County, in the Fox neighborhood, and stock raisers in that vicinity are alarmed for fear of a spread of the disease. The disease made its appearance in a drove of forty-one head of light cattle belonging to Clayton Hisle and Tom Christopher, who immediately took precautionary measures to prevent its spread and had Dr. J. O. Piersall, veterinary surgeon, of Winchester, to administer vaccine to the entire number. The presence of the disease was not noticed until Messrs. Hisle and Christopher had lost six head. According to Dr. Piersall, the disease has not appeared in any other section of the county and the prompt treatment may confine it to its present locality.

WRECK ON THE L. & E.

A wreck that occurred on the L. & E. last Thursday evening resulted in eight cars being derailed, and several hundred feet of rails and ties being torn up. The train was a double-header and all the cars were heavily loaded with coal. The cause of the wreck is not known, but is supposed to have been a spread rail. The engines and several cars passed over the spot and the first car to leave the track piled crossway over it.

Wrecking crews were called out from Jackson and Lexington, and the track was cleared by the next morning, without interfering to any great extent with the traffic over this line.

MT. STERLING PREACHER SERIOUSLY ILL

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Sept. 10.—Rev. T. W. Watts, pastor of the Methodist church in this city, is seriously ill at his home here. During the conference at Wilmore, which closed Sunday, Rev. Watts partook of some ice cream, which resulted in ptomaine poisoning, and for a time his condition was serious. He recovered sufficiently to be brought home and was ordered to bed by his physician. He will recover. Rev. Watts is one of the best known ministers of the Methodist church and has just been returned to Mt. Sterling for another year by the Conference.

EVERY PUPIL MUST BE VACCINATED

Under the State Health law, every child entering the public schools of Powell county must be vaccinated this month or else show a certificate that he or she has been vaccinated within the past five years. Under the law a good scar does not count unless a certificate can be procured.

James Edward Cantrill, the seventeen-year-old son of Congressman J. Campbell Cantrill, whom he referred to as the only other member of his family when he spoke here last July, will not follow suit of his father and become a farmer, but instead has chosen the profession of the law, and will attend the Washington and Lee University at Lexington, Va., the coming scholastic year.

SPOUT SPRING

A. C. Byrd returned Monday from a visit to relatives at Campton. Vernon Christopher is visiting relatives near Winchester.

Elder A. Seay, of Pittsburg, Pa., occupied the stand at the Baptist church Sunday morning. The Rev. Judge D. F. Mann of Clay City, attended the services and gave a short talk at the request of the Pastor.

The many friends here of Mr. T. S. Christopher will regret to learn that black-leg has broken out in his fine herd of cattle in Clark county, and that he has lost six of his number from that disease.

C. C. Todd, of near Winchester, was here Friday to see his sister, Mrs. Nannie Pryor. Mrs. Pryor returned home with her brother and is now visiting him and other relatives in Clark county around Ruckerville.

While using a broad-ax one day last week Logan King split a knee-joint in two. For a while it was thought lock-jaw was inevitable, but now the worst seems to have passed.

Morgan McKinney, of Winchester, was here a few days this week looking after his newly purchased firm.

Mrs. C. H. McCrawson, of Olympia, Bath County, visited her cousin, Mrs. Ellen McKinney, near the city last week.

Mrs. M. G. Whiteman and daughter, Miss Sallie, of Irvine, visited Mrs. Wm. Manitz, Jr., and Mrs. W. F. Barnett last week.

J. B. Hall, of Lexington, was here Friday.

G. B. Martin, of Montgomery county, was transacting business in the city Friday.

BODY OF RICHARDS FOUND IN RIVER

The body of Walter Richards, Superintendent of the Newport, Ky., Water Co., who was drowned in the Kentucky River at Lock No. 10 near Boonesboro, Sunday morning, was found floating in the river about six o'clock Tuesday morning. The body of Richards was taken in charge by Kerr & Bean, of Winchester, and prepared for burial.

Richards' body was bruised and cut in many places, indicating that it had been dashed with great force against the apron of the dam by the swift current.

The body was found about a quarter of a mile from the point where he was seen to go down in the boat he was rowing, when it was capsized by the undertow. It was badly decomposed, the features destroyed and were almost beyond recognition.

The State Board of Health of Kentucky has issued a proclamation calling attention to the dangers of Trachoma and forbidding the attendance at school of any person afflicted or suspected to be afflicted with this disease. The proclamation also states that Trachoma is becoming more prevalent in the counties of Breathitt, Clay, Jackson, Lee, Leslie, Owsley, Perry and adjacent sections with many cases in Jefferson and Clark, and a scattering in almost every county in the State, and that concerted action by the officials and citizens is necessary to stamp out this disease.

The disease is frequently spread by means of wash-basins, towels, pencils and other things used in common by children and by members of a family, and great care is needed to stamp it out and lessen the dangers of infection.

JUDGE ROBT. STOUT ORDERS INQUIRY

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 8.—Judge Stout, in his charge to the Franklin County grand jury Monday instructed that body to investigate the report of State Inspector and Examiner Sherman Goodpastor in regard to his charges of forgery and fraud on the automobile desk in the Department of the Secretary of State. He told the grand jurors not to hesitate to indict the guilty party or parties after making a thorough investigation of the charges.

Fraud practiced in this county in the recent primary election called forth some bitter remarks on the part of Judge Stout.

NEW WATER TANK.

The L. & N. has installed a new water tank here that will have a capacity of about four times that of the tank that has been in use in the past. Owing to the number of trains passing through Clay City during the night it was found necessary to keep a man on duty pumping both night and day, to supply the engines with sufficient water, but the larger tank will make it unnecessary for any pumping to be done at night.

The rains just keep "a comin'" and Powell county "nubbins" just keep "a stretchin'", until it is now believed we will raise a bumper crop from what a few months ago promised to be an almost total failure. But some how or other Powell always raises good crops. The only trouble seems to be that we don't put enough of our land in cultivation to "King Corn."

MARRIED IN THE SOUTH.

Mr. Ben Moore and Miss Luxora Caldwell were married at Sardis, Miss., recently. The groom is an old Clay City boy who went to Sardis several years ago with his parents, when a mere boy. From the way Clay City boys are capturing the Southern belles, we are led to believe that they are making themselves very popular in the favored South-land.

Deering is retained as Presiding Elder of the Lexington district; Rev. W. P. Fryman, a former Clay City Pastor, has been returned to the Irvine charge.

The Kentucky State Fair will be in session at Louisville next week. R. C. Terrell, Commissioner of Public Roads, has arranged a meeting of the Kentucky Good Roads Association, which is to be held at the State Fair Grounds in the convention tent at 2 p. m. Wednesday, Sept. 18.

It is hoped that every attendant of the Fair at that time from Powell county will attend this meeting and get still a little more activity into them, for truly are we in need of real action upon the good roads proposition.

We are pleased to note that many of our Powell county farmers are preparing to sow small grain this fall. It is expected that wheat especially, will be very high next year if the European war continues as the outlook now indicates. It is an assured fact that men cannot fight and raise wheat at the same time, and as it seems that they are willing to do the fighting, we will content ourselves with raising the wheat to feed them and let it go at that.

There has been a number of sales and rumors of sales of the Clay City Times for some weeks past, but it remained until last Friday morning for any permanent deal to transpire. It seems that each time a prospective buyer has looked at the plant, some one has jumped at the conclusion that the paper has been sold, and so reported it to the press. The retiring editor expresses his sincere thanks and appreciation to the brethren of the press who have so favorably commented on the paper and its publisher, occasioned by such reported sales, and he regrets that mention of these comments cannot be published, but to have done so at the time they appeared would have necessitated a denial which, under the circumstances, would have been more or less embarrassing to the editor and damaging to the paper.

POLITICS BARRED

BY PRES. WILSON

Washington, Sept. 8.—President Wilson today reaffirmed his announcement of yesterday that he would not take the stump in the coming campaign, believing he ought "to stay on the job" watching for the "unlooked-for international situation."

The definite announcement of the President to the campaign was made in giving to the public a letter written by Representative Doremus, of Michigan, Chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, who had written asking if the President would speak during the campaign.

The President's reply in part follows:

President's Reply.

"White House, Sept. 4, 1914.
"My Dear Mr. Doremus—I have read your letter of Sept. 1 with keen appreciation of its importance. It appeals to me as the leader of the party now in power with peculiar force and persuasiveness."

"The close of a very extraordinary session of Congress is at hand, which has, I venture to say, been more fruitful in important legislation of permanent usefulness to the country than any session of Congress within the memory of the active public men of our generation."

"We could go to the country with a very sincere appeal in which there need be no pretense or boast of any kind, but a plain statement of things accomplished which ought to be and I think would be entirely convincing."

At Peace With World.

"It is a record which shows us at peace with all the world; the questions which plagued business with doubt and uncertainty and irresponsible criticism have been thoughtfully settled and disposed of; the apparent antagonism between Government and business cleared away and brought to an end with the plain reckoning accomplished; the path for sure-footed adjustment clear ahead of us, and we are certain to come by means which will approve and applaud."

"More there is a program of another kind of us to which it is inspiring to look forward, a program free from debate, except as to the best means by which to accomplish what all desire."

"The great questions immediately ahead of us are the building up of our merchant marine with all that that means in the development and diversification of our foreign commerce and the systematic conservation and economic use of our national resources, subjects much talked about, but little acted upon."

Must Stay on Job.

"But in view of the unlooked-for international situation our duty has taken on an unexpected aspect. Every patriotic man ought now to 'stay on his job' until the crisis is passed, and ought to stay where his job can best be done."

We must do whatever is necessary and forego whatever is unnecessary to keep us in active concert in order to relieve in every possible way the stress and strain put upon our people during the continuance of the present extraordinary conditions."

"My job, I now know, can be done best only if I devote my whole thought and attention to it and think of nothing but the duties of the hour. I am not at liberty and shall not be, so far as I can now see, to turn away from these duties to undertake any kind of political canvass."

Expects Serious Work.

"I have, therefore, reached the conclusion that I cannot in any ordinary sense take an active part in the approaching campaign; that I must remain here to attend to the serious work sure to fill the months immediately before us—months that will carry with them obligations no doubt of the most tremendous sort. I know that you will feel similarly about your own obligations; that members of Congress, too, without distinction as to party affiliations, will feel that they must remain to do their work of necessary and pressing service and bring it to a successful conclusion."

"And certainly this is a time when America expects every man to do his duty without thought of profit or advantage to himself. America is greater than any party. America cannot properly be served by any man who for a moment measures his interest against her advantage.

Time for Great Things.

"The time has come for great things. These are days big with destiny for the United States, as for the other nations of the world. A little wisdom, a little courage, a little self-forgetful devotion may, under God, turn that destiny, this way or that. Great hearts, great natures, will respond. Even little men will rejoice to be stimulated and guided and set a heroic example. Parties will fare well enough without nursing if the men who make them up and the men who lead them forget themselves to serve as a cause and set a great people forward on the path of liberty and peace."

"Cordially and sincerely yours,

"WOODROW WILSON."

KENTUCKY CROPS.

The crop situation in Kentucky, according to all information obtainable, is decidedly promising. The wheat crop was the largest yield ever known and has now reached the price of $1 per bushel with the prospects of going higher.

The corn crop has responded to the general and soaking rains of the past few weeks until it now shows a condition ahead of that of the year 1913 and very close to a yield equaling the average of the past ten years. Its cash value will far exceed that of last year.

The Burley tobacco crop will probably equal that of 1913 and the quality at present is reported as good. Dark tobaccos are in fine condition and show an average yield. Burley tobaccos are consumed in America, dark tobaccos are principally used for export, but as the dark crop will not be ready for market for several months there is every reason to expect shipping facilities and foreign demand by the time the crop is cured.

Pasturage has responded to the recent rains and with stock water abundant the stockmen are also in a happy frame of mind.

Altogether the crop situation in Kentucky is most encouraging.

In Graftville.

Jim Brown lives in a community noted for the corruption of its politics. He drove into town the other day with an old horse. "Hello," said his friend Bill. "That horse of yours looks almost old enough to vote." "Yeas," drawled Jim. "He has voted two or three times." — Everybody's Magazine.

Merely a Surmise.

"Your honor," said the counsel, "this man's insanity takes the form of a belief that every one wants to rob him. He won't allow me, his counsel, to approach him." "Maybe he's not so crazy, after all," murmured the court in a judicial whisper.

Alrmen's Dinner Gong.

One of the strangest dinner gongs in the world hangs outside a mess tent at the army flying camp at Netheravon, on Salisbury Plain, England. It is an old cylinder of a Crome aeroplane engine, strung between two posts. When sharply struck a cyclinder gives out a clear, resounding noise, which calls the alrmen to their dinner as effectively as an ornate dinner gong.

In Her New Place.

"How are you getting on at your new place?" remarked a lady of a girl whom she had recommended for a situation. "Very well, thank you," answered the girl. "I am glad to hear it," said the lady. "Your employer is a very nice person, and you cannot do too much for her." "I don't mean to," was the innocent reply.

Cheerfulness.

What, indeed, does not that word cheerfulness imply. It means a contented spirit, it means a pure heart, it means a kind and loving disposition, it means humility and charity, it means a generous appreciation of others and a modest opinion of self.—Thackeray.

Reasons and Women.

"When a woman can give a reason for disliking a man, she hasn't any. If her dislike comes just because she has no reason there's generally good ground for it."—Reginald Wright Kauffman.

Elastic Concrete.

Elastic concrete ties of great strength, holding nails and bolts better than wood, are claimed as a new German railway product. The new concrete is made from a mixture of asbestos fibers and cement.

DEATH BLOW IS DEALT PROHIBITION

Washington, September 8.—The war special revenue bill has sounded the death knell of Federal prohibition, for a few years at any rate.

The Government cannot obtain taxes from liquor and prohibit its use at one and the same time. The European war has supplied the liberals with an over-whelming argument, and the passage of the additional revenue bill stops for the time being all effective work in behalf of Federal prohibition.

It happens that this situation accords with the views of the Democratic leaders of the House, who have advocated the submission of the Hobson prohibition amendment to the House on the theory that it would be badly defeated and given a quietus for some time to come.

Well Set-Up Bulwark.

An additional tax will be placed on beer, and possibly on liquors. Brewers and distillers, by paying an additional tax, will have set up a new bulwark against the destruction of their business. This result would have been avoided by a sale of Panama bonds, one of the devices for the raising of additional funds which has been suggested, but that device has had the opposition of both the liberals and the railroads, the latter being influenced to oppose a sale of Panama bonds because of the effect it would have on a money market into which they must soon go for large sums of new capital and the sale of new issues of securities to replace others shortly to fall due.

May Affect Politics.

A realization of the effect of the additional revenue bill is expected to be converted to political uses. Members of Congress are waiting to hear whether or not brewers will take kindly to the imposition of a new tax which will protect their business.

If the protection given the brewing and distilling industries is sufficient inducement to the magnates of those industries to cause them to regard higher taxes as to benefit rather than a burden, both Republican and Democratic candidates who want the wet vote will probably vote conspicuously for the revenue measures.

Taxes on spirited and fermented liquors now produce, roughly, one-fourth of the Government revenues.

It is also good for Rheumatism, Sore throat, Chest Pains, and Sprains. You don't need to rub—it penetrates. Mr. J. R. Swinger, Louisville, Ky., writes: "I suffered with quite a severe neuralgic headache for four months without any relief. I used Sloan's Liniment for two or three nights and I haven't suffered with my head since." Get a bottle today. Keep in the house all the time for pains and all hurts. 25c, 50c and $1, at your druggist.—Adv. Bucklen's Arnica Salve for all sores.

Lesson From a Flower.

I saw a delicate flower had grown up two feet high between the horses' path and the wheel-track. One inch more to right or left had sealed its fate, or an inch higher, and wet it lived to flourish as much as if it had a thousand acres of untrodden space around it, and never knew the danger it incurred. It did not borrow trouble, and invite an evil fate by apprehending it.—Thoreau.

Oldest Epigram.

An epigram must pass through many hands and get much polishing before it is a perfect jewel. You may remember how Oscar Wilde sent (on the stage) the man of the world through the drawing room door with the epigram. "There is one thing I never could resist; that is temptation." But you may trace it from the garden of Eden, where the masculine idea for mercy was that the "woman tempted me."

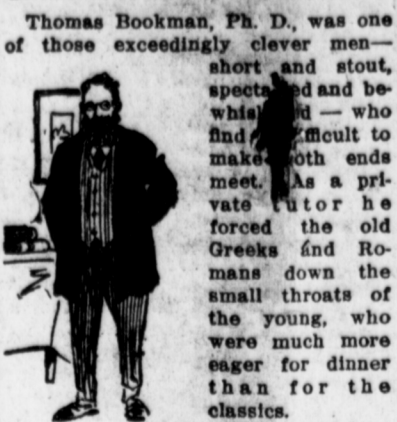

Something Wrong.

From the office window of the Evening Holler, in the gay and brilliant metropolis, the staff funny man scowled with vexation. "Oh, dear, what can the matter be?" he sighed. "I had my gilet set up in 17 different styles and sizes of type today, and still it isn't humorous."

South American Chinchilla. Chinchilla, popular as a decoration for smart gowns, comes from a little South American animal of that name. It is a herbivorous rodent, much resembling the rabbit, except that its ears are short and its tail long, and its fur is of a matchless softness.

A FABLE FOR PARENTS

By GEORGE E. STREETER.

Thomas Bookman, Ph. D., was one of those exceedingly clever men—short and stout, spectacled and whiskered—who find it difficult to make both ends meet. As a private tutor he forced the old Greeks and Romans down the small throats of the young, who were much more eager for dinner than for the classics.

Everything about Mr. Bookman was dingy and melancholy. The world in which he lived was surrounded by creditors, who merely knew him as a debtor to be continually carried forward in their books. His children looked upon him as a man of mystery, woefully deficient in small change; while his wife realized that he possessed real ability and no income to speak of.

The only oasis in the Sahara of the Bookman family was Lucretia, the eldest of the six daughters. She was an eminently practical girl. One day she said to her father:

"I have long been thinking of our position, and it seems to me that unless something is done at once we shall starve. There are six of us girls, and not one earning a cent. I have had an offer of marriage from Fred Harris, our baker."

"What?" gasped Mr. Bookman. "Yes, father; our baker. He is not a literary man, but he has a good business."

"This is terrible!" exclaimed the Ph. D. "What madness has seized you, my daughter?"

"No madness, father; I am talking plain sense. Listen to me for a minute. You know that we have never been overfed, though perhaps over-educated. I will never marry a man connected with either education or literature. I have decided to marry Mr. Harris, and, if I want to read Plato afterward, I shall be able to do so near a good warm stove."

"But, Lucretia, Socrates says—" "Both Socrates, father, and all his tribe!" rejoined the young woman. "He would be arrested as a vagrant in these days. Fancy an old man stopping people on the streets, and asking their opinions on the tariff, bimetalism, or the like! Mother says she is willing to give me marry the baker, for it means unlimited bread and cake for the human family."

For a minute or two Mr. Bookman was silent. He was thinking deeply, and along a line of thought that was new to him.

"I am becoming interested in what you say, my dear," he finally remarked. "But bread and cake are not the only necessities. Only this morning your mother told me we are in need of coal again."

"Well, father, before next winter comes, Jennie may marry young Hart, the coal merchant of South street; he has called on her three times this week."

Father and daughter continued the conversation for more than an hour that dull March afternoon. Mr. Bookman began to see things in a different light, and gave his consent to Lucretia's marriage. That bright young woman urged her sisters to keep a sharp lookout for business men, and before the month of April was over she led the way by marrying Fred Harris. In June, Jennie married the coal merchant; and Lucinda, the second girl, became the wife of George Ross, a neighboring butcher. Things looked brighter for the Bookman family.

In discussing with his wife the great change in the family's affairs, the head of the house thus expressed himself:

"You see, my dear, how much we are indebted to Lucretia's practical mind. If my father had insisted on me becoming a blacksmith, or a shoemaker, he would have been wiser; and I, no doubt, would now be better off. Think of the years I have spent in trying to lead the youth of this town around the moss-covered Parthenon, getting only small fees in return. But we are now connected with trade, and although I am no politician, I appreciate a free breakfast table."

"The ancients," he continued, warming to his subject, "seem to have satisfied their hunger with dialogues, but such airy nutriment as that is not suited either to this part of the globe or to the present age."

"No, indeed," said his wife. "Only yesterday I bought some combs from a Harvard graduate. He spoke so nicely, but seemed thoroughly disheartened. He said he is not tall enough to join the police, over age for the army, and far too bilious to enter the navy. I think he said he took four scholarships, but he declared that if he failed to sell the dozen combs he had with him before night, he would commit suicide."

"Very sad, my dear," remarked Mr. Bookman. "Just listen to this little verse I wrote this afternoon:

Education is no good
To take the place of daily food.
Half a loaf and a level head
Are better than learning without any bread!

"Beautiful," said Mrs. Bookman, "and so true!"

IT WAS REAL TROUBLE

By JESSE CROWN.

Mrs. Whittingham squeezed lemon into her husband's second glass of iced tea. "George," she began abruptly, "I'm perfectly sure that those Youngmarrys across the street have had a dreadful quarrel."

Whittingham knew that he might as well have it over with. "Now, Genevieve," he answered, "you're always suspecting something. But what makes you think they have had a misunderstanding?"

"You know how much they always seemed to think of one another," she said, "and how they always seemed to be such—ah—"

"Billers and coosers." "Yes, that's it exactly. Well, this morning after you had gone she came out on the porch as usual and got into the swing, in a little while he came out, too, and he never once offered to kiss her good-by, which is something he never before failed to do. He seemed so stiff and straight, and he simply marched right down the steps and away up the street without looking back once. I never saw it happen before. He always kisses her good-by and he always kissed her first thing when he reached home in the evening."

"Why," said Whittingham, "I came home with him this evening and—"

"You needn't tell me that you didn't notice anything amiss," interrupted Mrs. Whittingham. "I know you didn't. Men never do. But what I noticed only confirms what you call my suspicions."

"After you left him at the steps you didn't look back. But I watched and Mr. Youngmurry marched right up and into the house with his face straight in front of him—dignified and cold and unbending as a ramrod. Mrs. Youngmurry appeared to smile a little half ashamed smile, and she got right up and followed him inside."

"And then while you were working in the garden Mrs. Youngmurry called little Jimmie Monson and sent him hurrying off to the drug store. I inquired of Jimmy what it was that Mrs. Youngmurry asked him to get, and Jimmy said he couldn't remember the name, but that the bottle had a skull and crossbones on it.

"I think it's perfectly dreadful for a romance as sweet as that one to end so. And such young married folks, too!"

"Well, my dear," said Whittingham, "you see—"

"Now, there's no excuse for it at all," went on Mrs. Whittingham emphatically. "I'm sure they haven't been married a year, and here they are quarrelling like cats and dogs. To think of their not kissing good-by! I shouldn't be surprised if she took that poison she sent Jimmy Monson after! I'm all excited over it. I'm waiting every minute to see the ambulance rush up to their door and carry out her poor dead body! Men are such heartless things, and I think that something ought to be done before it's too late. I thought maybe Mr. Youngmurry said something to you about it on the way home—men are apt to tell one another their troubles."

"He did," responded Whittingham. "And you've let me worry all this time! George, that's downright mean of you! I don't see why you couldn't tell me."

"I've been trying to tell you for ten minutes. Youngmurry did not kiss his wife this morning as you observed and I know that he walks stiff as a poker. That is because he has a large pet boil on the back of his neck. The poison that Jimmy Monson purchased was nothing but a little iodine I advised him to paint it with. And so your terrible tragedy is not going to be pulled off this evening!" "Oh," breathed Mrs. Whittingham. "I'm sure that's too bad!"—Chicago Daily News.

A Hopeful Parent.

"So your boy is home from college?" "Yes." "I presume you have ambitious plans for his future?" "Oh, yes. There are two big league scouts in town and I expect one of them to approach him at any moment."
